REPUBLICAN SUCCESS. N. I. T.
REPUBLICAN SUCCESS—NIT.

The outlook for Republican success in the Territory this fall was never brighter. The party ranks are working in perfect harmony. On the other hand, there is a considerable faction in the Democratic party which is dissatisfied with Mark Smith's old story. Smith is a candidate for re-election as delegate to Congress and will undoubtedly be the Democratic nominee. There is a considerable element in that party which regards Mark as an old timer and pensioner who must be taken care of by the party which he has worked for so long. Those Democrats who realize that Mark has done little or nothing during his many years stay at Washington, see no hope for defeating him in his own party and will be forced to cut off the head of the Democratic ticket. Mark, who is blinded by the laudatory newspaper stories in his personal organ at Tucson, cannot take in the situation. He expects to work that only stashed campaign cry for all it is worth.—Tucson Post.

The above is the first campaign gun fired by one of the Republican organs of the Territory, to-wit, the Tucson Post. If the Post and the followers of the G. O. P. can get any solace and comfort out of such campaign literature, the Review would not be mean enough to attempt to deny them that little pleasure.

The Post is correct in the assumption that Mark Smith will again be a candidate for delegate to Congress from Arizona. He not only will be the Democratic nominee, unanimously, and as a unit, but the Republicans of Arizona, in recognition of his invaluable services to the people of Arizona during the hard fought statehood battle at Washington, will also give him their votes. The Republicans of Arizona have been placed in an embarrassing position through the attitude of their party on the statehood question. It is not their fault, it is true, for it has been demonstrated that the great majority of the rank and file of the Republican party, as well as the Democratic party of Arizona, are unalterably opposed to the joint statehood with New Mexico. But, the fact remains that the Republican President and a Republican House of Representatives have endorsed the Hamilton joint statehood bill as their pet measure, and it was only due to the staunch loyalty of the Democrats of the Senate, lined up in a solid phalanx by Mark Smith against the bill, who prevented its passage.

So long as the joint statehood issue is before Congress Mark Smith need not seek the nomination. The people of Arizona will demand that their able representative be returned again to stand guard. The attempt of the Post to start a howl against Mark Smith don't leave a good taste in the mouth. Mark Smith is today more popular in Arizona than ever before, and his majority in November will break all previous records.

POLITICAL EXPENSES.

In the discussion of the bill now pending in Congress for requiring that all contributions to political committees shall be reported to the clerk of the House of Representatives, some very interesting statistical matter was brought out. It was shown that from the very beginning of its career, the Republican party has relied largely on the use of money in elections, and that in 1896 its national campaign fund amounted to $16,500,000, while that of the Democrats reached only $675,000. In 1900, the Republicans spent $9,500,000, and the Democrats $425,000. Strong efforts have been made to discover how much money Mr. Bliss and Mr. Cortelyou received in 1904; but though it has been proven that they and Mr. Babcock got enormous sums from the life insurance companies, and it has been charged, and not denied, that they also received large sums from the trusts and railroads, it has been impossible to discover how much money was expended by the party of corruption and special privileges. Many of these contributions were taken from trust funds by men like Perkins, McCurdy, McCall and Hyde; and District Attorney Jerome, of New York, who has had Perkins arrested on a charge of larceny, said if Perkins is guilty, then it follows that Bliss, the treasurer, and Cortelyou, the chairman of the Republican national committee, are guilty of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen.

This may account for the silence of the President respecting these contributions. He would, no doubt, have ordered the stolen money to be restored to the life insurance companies, if it were not that restitution of stolen goods by the receivers after discovery would amount to a confession of larceny and put the President's friends, Bliss and Cortelyou, in the same predicament with Perkins—a fact which would sadly interfere with the gayety of the President's official family. He would not compel the members of that family to give evidence against themselves by restoring money stolen from widows and orphans who have no votes. That would be a miscarriage of justice almost as bad as that for which he lampooned Judge Humphrey in his recent message to Congress.—Prescott Courier.

ELECTION OF SENATORS

The matter of electing United States Senators by vote of the people is coming closer to the people and is assuming more important proportions as time advances. Within a few years, even if the Constitution of the United States should not be changed, it will be the rule and not the exception as it now is to designate the favorite sons in a primary election. Great bodies move slowly, and it takes time to make changes in, or amendments to the Constitution of this country. In this matter, however, the people can do a great deal by enacting legislation providing that there shall be primary elections to give voice to the choice of the majority of the voters who shall represent them in the upper branch of the national legislature. Referring to the recent decision by the people of Tennessee as to who shall represent them in the Senate upon the expiration of the term of United States Senator Carmack, the Chicago Record-Herald pertinently says that Senator Carmack of Tennessee was defeated last week for re-nomination at the democratic primaries by a decisive majority. His opponent was ex-Governor Taylor, and Tennessee politicians and impartial observers point out that there is consolation for Carmack in the fact that it "took the most popular man in the state to beat him."

There is a lesson in the Tennessee Senatorial situation for all those states in the Union which have not provided as the southern states generally have, for the virtual "extra-legal" election of federal Senators by popular vote, or as Illinois proposes to do, for the ascertainment of public opinion with regard to the candidates for those senatorships.

Carmack is an active, aggressive man, and he has tried to serve the people of Tennessee to the best of his ability. He is to be displaced by a man whom the democrats of the state like and admire much more—in fact, as we are told, by "the most popular man in Tennessee." Taylor goes to the Senate because the dominant party wants him there.

How many of our august Senators can legitimately pretend to similar title, to similar credentials? What Senator would not be proud to know that he was the choice of the people rather than of a machine-controlled legislature? What is there in the antiquated method of indirect and non-popular election of federal Senators to command the continued support of men intellectually and morally fit to serve in the sense originally intended having long since disappeared; the choice really lies between election by bosses and spoils cliques. Can we doubt which of the alternatives the people prefer?

FIND NO COAL MORMONS MEET

Charley Strong Steers Shattuck, Overlock and Pattison to Graphite Find.

FIND DISCOVERED
FIFTEEN YEARS AGO.

Bisbee Capitalists Go Twenty Miles Into Chiricahuas From San Simon in Search of Anthracite, But Don't Get It.

Worn out as a result of their trip, their confidence in Charley Strong as a discoverer of coal beds shaken, L. C. Shattuck, L. G. Overlock and Superintendent B. M. Pattison, of the Shattuck-Arizona, returned to Bisbee yesterday morning, each taking an oath that they will feloniously assault the next man who says coal to either of them.

Getting out of Bisbee as secretly as possible, the trio was taken under the protecting wing of Strong, who had on several occasions taken each of them into a back room to whisper the details of his glowing find of anthracite coal in quantities that would stagger a lightning calculator.

Going to San Simon, on the Southern Pacific road, to which point they had telegraphed ahead to have the lightest conveyances and swiftest horses ready for them, Strong, Shattuck, Overlock and Pattison drove to the southwest twenty miles into the Chiricahuas.

Deserting their wagon when it could be taken no further, Shattuck and Overlock, both of whom are in excellent condition for long mountain climbs, trekked into the hills for about two miles, and then they reached Strong's wonderful find.

But Strong's companions by no means went into virgin territory. They went to a "coal field" that has been visited by almost every mining man in the country. Those who have not been there have had the pleasure of putting up the expenses for others to go in their interests.

In other words, Strong had piloted the friends he was going to let in on a good thing to a coal discovery that was made not less than fifteen years ago, and on which several thousand dollars have been expended by various exploiters in development work.

No sooner did Superintendent Pattison have a look at Strong's coal than he pronounced it a form of graphite. To make certain that he was not mistaken, Shattuck and Overlock each took a large chunk of the stuff and attempted to make it burn. The result was a remark from Shattuck—that it might be suitable for lining fireplaces.

To satisfy Strong not to pass too hasty judgment, Pattison, Shattuck and Overlock looked the district over thoroughly, but they found no better indications of coal than at the point to which Strong first guided them.

Disappointed that they had not found a source from which to supply all the Southwest with fuel, Strong, Shattuck, Pattison and Overlock lost no time getting back to their wagon. They returned to San Simon even more hastily than when they had left it a short time before to get their monument around half a hundred coal claims.

Whether Strong has the best joke on his three companions or they have it on him is a matter of conjecture. Each is of the opinion that the other fellow was the worst taken in.

The coal field to which the party went was found about fifteen years ago by an Englishman. He hired men and run a tunnel not less than 100 feet under the mountain. About this time he began to send samples of the coal to different assay offices, each returning the same answer—that it was not even a forerunner of coal, but a poor grade of graphite.

Not satisfied with his first assays, the Englishman sent more of them to distant points, some going to England, Germany and France, where he had chemists make a thorough analysis. After getting the opinion of half a hundred experts he gave up in disgust.

Every few years the coal field is rediscovered. Just enough work is done at these periods to keep a great deal of ground open, which causes the next fellow who comes along to grow delighted over the bonanza he has discovered.

In Strong's behalf it should be stated that he had not seen the coal field before he went there with his Bisbee friends. He was led to believe there were millions to be made out of the proposition by a prospector, who is now believed to have been looking for a piece of easy money.

Gathering of Latter Day Saints Addressed by Hon. W. T. Webb and Others.

MAY BUILD CHURCH ON BISBEE GROUND.

President Kimball Raises Bisbee Man From Presiding Elder to Bishop, With Jurisdiction Over Bisbee.

A well-attended gathering of members of the Church of Latter Day Saints in Pythian Castle last night listened to speeches made by President Kimball of the St. John's Stake and Hon. W. T. Webb.

Mr. Webb's address to the members of his church was the event of the evening, he choosing for his subject "The Settlement and Subjugation of the West."

Mr. Webb likened the pioneers of his church to the Pilgrim Fathers who landed on Plymouth Rock, and paid a tribute to the hardy men of his faith, who dared the perils of the plains and brought forth "beds of flowers from the barrenness."

He went extensively into the early history of Mormonism; told in touching word-pictures of the suffering and ignominy that had been heaped upon his forefathers, but dismissed the subject with a magnanimity toward the enemies of his church that was a masterpiece of eloquence in itself.

Everybody who knows Webb and has heard his speak knows of the power of his eloquence, but last night he was at his best on a subject that is near and dear to his heart, and the orator from Pima outshined himself in the beauty of his word-pictures.

Charles Warren, a worker in the church, has been raised from presiding elder to bishop of the Bisbee Ward, and will have under his jurisdiction the branch ward at Douglas and possibly Tombstone.

The Bisbee ward now numbers 80 members, and it will be but a short time until a meeting house will be erected to meet the needs of Warren's flock.

With President Kimball on his trip through the southern part of the Territory is Mayor E. C. Phillips of Thatcher. These gentlemen will leave Bisbee today for Tombstone, and thence to their home in Graham county.

President Kimball expressed himself as pleased at the conditions as he found them among his people. He will return again next year.

CLEARY WILL MOVE
FAMILY TO BISBEE.

Attorney W. B. Cleary, who has offices in the Muhelm block, will leave in a few days for Phoenix, where he will join his family, and with them return to Bisbee. Attorney Cleary will bring with him his household furniture and make arrangements to settle in this city permanently.

EX-OFFICER ARRESTED CHARGED WITH THEFT.

A. J. Finnerty was yesterday arrested by Officer Jack White on the charge of stealing railroad ties from the E. P. & S. W. It is thought by some that the charge is a trumped-up one and that Finnerty is being made the butt of spite.

A Good Suggestion.
Mr. C. B. Wainwright of Lemon City, Fla., has written the manufacturers that much better results are obtained from the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in cases of pains in the stomach, colic, cholera morbus by taking it in water as hot as can be drunk. That when taken in this way the effect is double in rapidity. "It seems to get at the right spot instantly," he says. For sale by all druggists.
